Health Leadership in the Chemical Industry Conference

4 April 2019 - Hilton Hotel, Neville Street, Leeds LS1 4BX

“Go Home Healthy’ – The human aspects affecting an individual’s health at work”.

Building on the Health & Safety Executive’s (HSE) commitment in Helping Great Britain Work Well and CIA’s Health Leadership Signpost guides (Mental Health and Mental Wellbeing Policies; Drug and Alcohol Policy; Health Metrics Indicator Tool), the Chemical Industries Association and the Health and Safety Executive have joined forces to further explore the link between human factors and individual health, and how good leadership and effective systems can positively influence that.

It’s a not to miss event, on a topic that is always hot on our agendas. Come and hear from the HSE - the regulator - guided by current ongoing research, and acting as a champion for prevention to inspire greater ambition in Health Leadership. You will also hear from our sector leaders about their real journeys to implement relevant good practice. The HSE’s statistics report that in 2017/18 some 1.4 million workers suffered from a work-related illness resulting in a loss of 30.7 million working days with an economic cost of £15 billion (for the period 2016-2017).

Whether you’re a specialist or non-specialist; in HR, Occ. Health or SHE disciplines; a CIA member or non-member, this conference is for all. There will be lots of opportunity for interacting with guest speakers, networking, and visiting exhibitors’ stands in break areas.

This conference aims to show how by being proactive, workplace health can not only benefit the health of your best resource – your people - but also your organisation itself. We can all take action, big or small, by raising awareness to protect and improve health and wellbeing. By working together businesses can successfully move forwards to achieving sustainable healthy workplaces.
